

Genealogy Research Guide for Nelson County, Virginia
Created by Deborah R. Harvey, Genealogy Researcher
drharvey60@gmail.com

History

Nelson County was formed from Amherst County on December 25, 1807 and the county government was established in 1808. The county was named for the third Governor of Virginia, Thomas Nelson, Jr. The county seat was established on land donated by James Loving and named Lovingston in his honor.

The genealogy of Nelson County is as follows:

1727-Goochland    1744 - Albemarle County    1761 - Amherst County

Settlers

Nelson County's earliest settlers migrated into the area following the James River from the eastern part of the state into present day Nelson County. From the James River which forms one boundary of the county. Other settlers, primarily of Scotch-Irish descent, migrated into Nelson County from the Valley of Virginia settling primarily in the Rockfish Valley area. French Huguenots also settled near the area that later became Lovingston. These early explorations of the area occurred around 1730. Dr. William Cabell established the first permanent settlement named Warminster on the James River in the early 1740s.

Nelson County has and continues to be a rural county with the major industries focused on farming, timber, and mining of soapstone and titanium. The town of Woodson was established to support the extensive timber operations in the western portion of the county, but declined dramatically following the chestnut blight that struck Virginia between 1920 and 1950 and eliminated much of that industry. The towns of Schuyler and Piney River grew up as mining towns with soapstone mining in Schuyler and titanium in Piney River. The town of Schuyler was the home of Earl Hamner, Jr. and the inspiration for his books and the television show the Waltons.

Borders

Nelson County's borders have remained constant since its formation in 1807.

Researcher Guidance

In addition to the repositories listed in this guide, researchers should also consult repositories in Fluvanna County, Buckingham County, Augusta County, the College of William and Mary, the Library of Virginia and the Albemarle and Amherst County courthouses.

Photocopies: Requests for photocopies can be made by mail or in person and are dependent upon approval by the Library staff. Costs are $.25 per copy plus a $6.00 handling fee if mailed. A 10-day wait time is needed for all copy requests. Copies can be picked up at the University Bookstore at the Printing and Copying Services office between 8:00 am and 5:00 pm, Monday-Friday.

Digital images of large items can also be requested using the Digitization Services Request Form.

Digital cameras can be used after completing an application form at the reference desk. Use of the camera may be limited due to restrictions on certain holdings and must be limited for research use. Items deemed too fragile for photography can be reproduced through a special request.

Parking: Parking is available in the Central Grounds Parking Garage (#9 on the attached map) which can be entered on McCormick Road or on Emmet Street (Route 29). Parking rates are $1.00/hour Monday-Saturday from 8:00-5:00 p.m. and .70/hour at other times.

Alternatively parking is available in the "Corner" area near the University just beyond Booker House (#2 on the map) along University Avenue.

Restaurants: A number of fast food restaurants are located in the bottom of Newcomb Hall (#30 on map). A number of other restaurants are located a short walk from the Library on the "Corner" across University Avenue (just beyond #3 on the map).

The Special Collections Library contains an extensive collection of manuscripts, rare books, maps, broadsides, photographs, prints, microfilm as well as audio and video collections. Of primary interest for genealogical purposes relevant to the counties of Albemarle, Amherst, and Nelson are the Jefferson Paper with correspondence between Jefferson and others. A guide is available online at the Virginia Heritage Guide to Manuscripts & Archived Collections in Virginia: A Calendar of the Jefferson Papers at the University of Virginia. The University also has an extensive collection of Virginia with collections from many of the prominent families of the area such as the Cabell Family, as well as across Virginia. The Special Collections Library also includes the University archives with records of the activities of non-current students, faculty, and administration. Records are organized by the office or school which created the record and span the nineteenth and twentieth century.

Because of the magnitude of the holdings researchers are encouraged to work closely with the library staff to obtain any records or information of interest. A limited, but growing, number of records are included in the Library's Online catalog, VIRGO.

Many of UVA's manuscripts can be searched through the Virginia Heritage database, with the search limited to University of Virginia, Special Collections Department.

Researchers are encouraged to review "A Guide to Genealogical Resources at the University of Virginia" prior to visiting.

Repositories (cont.): University of Virginia

Rules and procedures for accessing the holdings of the Special Collections Library are available on line at <http://www2.lib.virginia.edu/small/>. Important notes are that only loose sheets of paper, pencils, and laptop computers are allowed in the research room. Lockers are available outside the research room for storing personal items. Identification and completion of a form is required before being granted access to computers and resources in the library.

Directions:

From US 29 (N or S) take the second exit to Charlottesville on US 250 E. Follow US 250 E to the intersection with Emmett Street. Turn right on to Emmett Street. The Jones Memorial Library in Lynchburg, Virginia focuses on genealogy and local history. The library has one of the largest collections of genealogical and historical information in the Commonwealth of Virginia. The library contains numerous published genealogies and information on families contained in family files searchable through a computer-based index searchable from within the library. The family files contain a variety of family information including genealogical charts, cemetery records, Bible records, unpublished books, etc. The library has an extensive collection of microfilmed newspapers from Lynchburg, Virginia and some of the surrounding counties dating back to 1795. Most holdings of the library are held in closed stacks and must be requested. The library's holdings, in addition to the family files and microfilmed newspapers, include pamphlets, architectural archives, obituaries (searchable on-line), funeral home records (searchable on-line), census records for Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky (1850) and Maryland (1850) as well as census indexes for numerous other states and years, and photographs (on-line searchable through Lynchburghistory.com). The library's catalog is on computer and the main catalog can be searched on-line through the Lynchburg Information Online Network (LION). LION supports searches of seven other local libraries including the Rare Books and Archives of Sweet Briar College. Holdings of unpublished works such as the pamphlets, funeral home records, and family files are searchable
